

Abstract

An electronic apparatus for receiving source synchronous signals is provided. The receiver continuously monitors the phase relationship between each data signal and 5 the source synchronous clock signal. In this manner, the electronic apparatus can compensate for phase discrepancies that occur over time without having to interrupt any data operations.

0954799.091801
108160.664560